Robert Burns.

I am monarch of all I survey,
My right there is none to dispute,
From the centre all round to the sea
I am lord of the fowl and the brute.
Oh, solitude! where are the charms
That sages have seen in thy face?
Better dwell in the midst of alarms
Than reign in this horrible place.

I am out of humanity's reach,
I must finish the journey alone,
Never hear the sweet music of speech,
I start at the sound of my own.
The beasts that roam over the plain
My form with indifference see;
They are so unacquainted with man,
Their tameness is shocking to me.

Society, friendship and love
Divinely bestowed upon man,
Oh had I the wings of a dove
How soon would I taste you again!
My sorrows I then might assuage
In the ways of religion and truth,
Might learn from the wisdom of age
And check the inconsiderate youth.

Ye winds that have made me your sport,
Convey to this desolate shore
Some cordial endearing report
Of a land I shall visit no more.
My friends, do they now and then send
A wish or a thought after me?
O tell me I yet have a friend,
Though a friend I am never to see.

How fleet is a glance of the mind!
Compared with the speed of its flight,
The tempest itself lags behind,
And the swiftest of wings move slow.
What limits the bird's wide career,
Wild roving where'er he inclines,
Is nothing more than the bear
That bounds on the verge of his mines.

How fearful the grandeur of God
In these wonders to sinners unknown!
This dread solitude and this flood
Proclaim the Creator's power alone.
Not content with creating a world
Which matter and motion obey,
Immortal and wonderful Lord,
Thou hast lasting dominion as they.

Then shall the burden of blessing
Be laid on my head from above,
In full consummation possessing
My utmost conception of love.
Then earth's habitations remote
Shall rapturous hallelujahs hear,
And heaven's high mansions shall note
The language of prayer and of prayer.

Then shall the last chapter of woe
Be finished in characters bright,
And circled with rainbows will go
The volume of evidence light.
Then fully accomplished will be
The purpose of God in the plan,
The doubts of philosophers flee,
And angels pronounce it all man.

SATURDAY, JULY 31, 1880.

Some of the South African native are disputing the assertion in making the roles of British rule, have taken a very novel plan of opting their oppression by the adoption of a little "national debt," as it were. A large campaign, with a capital of $650,000, has been formed for the purpose of preventing the importation of English manufactures, and promoting the purchase of goods from natives and other countries. They have evidently come to the conclusion that even Britain only maintains a hold upon her country for what she can make out of the people by her tradesmen and speculators, and that if they destroy the trade between the two countries, this all powerful partner to be removed, and then it is hoped that the close-fisted englishman will be only too glad to tenders what he already possess a very extensive market. The natives there have been vainly striving to drive the Britishers by pricking their hats; they will now try a new task, and see what they can do by tempting the chief. King Cetywayo in his captivity, is evidently been devoting his leisure moments to the study of medieval human nature, and have discovered the Englishman's weak point.

The new house department has lately been engaged in punishing the constabulary of defences for the Dominion Canada and Australia, and it is thought that a scheme will soon be carried about with this object. One of the measures proposed is the establishment of a fleet of small armed vessels for coast service. One of the difficulties in the way is the western route who is to bear the expense. There are very many in the country who will scarcely object to paying heated upon to the amount which the people in Europe of keeping up a standing army to eat up the earnings of the working portion of community. We was a young man then still afloat to college in any such industrial, and as we are supposed to live peaceably with our neighbors, we confess we can see little reason for maintaining a large force for the defence of ourselves in our midst, to eat up the hard earnings of our people.

The medical fraternity throughout the world has at last become interested in Dr Tanner's wonderful fasting feat. Even the doctor stated that he had once been successful in going without other than air and water for a period of 70 days, he was sacrificed at, and was replied by offering to repeat the operation, he could scarcely get sufficient interest awakened among the medical men of New York to have a Committee appointment to watch him during the ordeal. He has now passed thirty of the forty days which he allotted himself, remaining only a few minutes of each week day, which is carefully administered by a deputation of disinterested medical men. Before undertaking the feat he weighed 160 pounds, and has reduced gradually in weight at the rate of one pound per day, until he now weighs about 130. During the first few days of the fast he experienced all the pangs of starvation, but the craving for food has long since left him, and he now has no demands of appetite which water will not satisfy. He has a reception at a public hall in the city, where visitors are admitted by paying a fee of 25 cents; he takes but little exercise, simply indulging in a drive up the Jersey shore to receive the benefit of pure air. The Dr. has always maintained that there is sufficient substance in pure air and water to sustain life for a long period, and that a person had only sufficient self-control to endure the cravings of hunger for the first night or ten days, and it is to prove the correctness of his theory that he is submitting himself to the present ordeal. He attributes his success entirely to the exertion of a superior will-power. The medical men in attendance report that to all appearance Dr. Tanner is in a perfectly healthy condition, and beyond his sunken and looks there is little indication of the wonderful ordeal through which he is passing, and having endurance enough, it is generally believed that he will survive the full forty days fast, and reserve without any ill effects. The principal perceptible effect so far as noticed by Dr., is the irritableness displayed by him on very trivial circumstances, and many amusing anecdotes are going the rounds. The other day a prominent lady of the city, during a visit to the Dr. was bantering him about eating an apple, when, with surprising but gentlemanly humor, he replied he would not eat an apple even if it were presented by a lady. His fast has awakened a deep interest, and telegraphic reports of his condition are constantly furnished to every part of the world.

Death of an Old Citizen.

On Tuesday of last week Mr. Charles Mc-Rose, an old and respected citizen of the town passed to his final reward. For a long time he had been in feeble health, and a severe fall received while walking in his garden a short time since, hastened his end. Deceased was a native of Perthshire, Scotland, but for the last forty years lived in Napanee. He was a gentleman universally respected by all who knew him, and his funeral on Thursday was attended by a large cortege of sorrowing friends and relatives.

Acquitted.

On Thursday last Mr. James McQueen, of Napanee, was placed upon his trial before His Honor Judge Wilkinson, charged with stealing a horse, the property of Mr. Collins. McQueen purchased an aged, somewhat reliable animal, testifying that he was in Odessa at the time it was said he disappeared, and that he was a hypnotist. He was acquitted. W. A. Reeve, Q.C., county attorney, prosecuted; J. E. Madden, Esq., for the defence. We should have the accused host, since that his character has always been above suspicion.

The Railway.

The favorable result of the vote on the additional bonus in Napanee, has caused an unusual boom in railway circles, and already the three other municipalities interested in the enterprise have submitted bylaws supporting their previous votes by 50 per cent. The several municipal councils held special meetings and bylaws granting the proposed grants in the following amounts: Napanee, $2,500; Sheffield, $5,000; Camden, $10,000. If these amounts are granted, it will make a total of $92,500 of bonuses in the road. Today will take place at the several municipalities at noon.

Sad Drowning Accident.

A telegraphic despatch gives the particulars of a sad drowning accident which occurred near Camden East on Wednesday afternoon last. A couple of small boys were rambling in the river, when one of them, Charley, son of Mr. Archibald Hamilton, undertook to swim across to the opposite side. The current was very strong, and he was unable to get across. He was seen by his companion struggling in the water, but returned to render some assistance, but was unable to do so. He then started to summon help, but before others arrived it was too late. The body was recovered after remaining in the water about an hour, and everything in attempted for the bereaved parents.

Are we to Have a Bank?

Mr. James Armstrong, formerly of this town, but late of St. Louis, called upon us on a week and informed us that if sufficient encouragement were held out to him, he and his family would locate in Napanee and establish a current bank. As a banker of a long head, Mr. A. needs no word of recommendation from us; his ability as a financier is widely well known by nearly all of our old citizens, and he has certainly benefited by the experience of the last few years in some of the principal cities of the United States. The only question is, have we sufficient public spirit in Napanee to warrant the opening of a bank in a country town in the place of the same size and importance? We hope so, for the sake of the town and its citizens generally we ought to be able to afford this, a small luxury, and we hope to see Mr. Armstrong move towards carrying out his laudable enterprise at an early date.

Death of an Old Settler.

The many friends of Capt. John Perdue will regret to learn of the death of that old pioneer very suddenly and unexpectedly on his home in the Shark neighborhood, in the township of Camden, on Saturday last. Capt. Perdue was in the employ of Messrs. Downey & Co. for about fifteen years, having commanded a number of their vessels. When the George Davy was purchased by Messrs. Hay, he sailed her for a number of years between this and American ports. Last year he retired from the employment of Messrs. Downey & Co., as Captain of the Dauntless, and established the shingle mill at the place where he purchased. During the last season he was taken with a severe cold, which settled upon his lungs, and caused a disease of the heart, from which he never recovered. He was confined to his bed about a fortnight previous to his death, and was conscious almost to the last moment. He would converse with his family and friends, and only fully believe he had left apparently in the midst of his usual employments. He was a man of the strictest integrity and honor, and by his death the community has lost one of its most worthy citizens. Many of our readers will remember the deceased as a resident of Napanee, and will sympathize with the bereaved family in their sad affliction.

To any of our readers who could picture to themselves a house with a history in a more brilliant. The times in which they were built were times of feud and bloodshed, and the difficulty would be to find one whose walls, if they could speak, would have no tale to tell. But the history attaching to this particular house is the most record of murder and rapine. It perpetrator, almost as a matter of course, the memory of a deadly feud; but it was perpetrated the cruelest, the tenderest, the ever-less story of the Middle Ages.

This Osteria del Cappello—otherwise the Hostelry of the Hat—was once a splendid mansion; that Hat was assuredly for a cost of a noble Veronese family. The house was called the Casa dei Cappelletti; and the Cappelletti were the Capulets of Verona.
